

NEW LOCOMOBILE A NOISE MAKER

"Chu-chu!"
"Gee whizz!"
It was a new kind of locomobile which made its appearance in town yesterday which gave vent to the first expression and pedestrians on Fort were responsible for latter. And no wonder. The locomobile is truly a machine which is bound to make itself heard wherever it goes.
Men, women and children are alike on the qui vive when the regular "chu-chu" of the carriage is heard, and horses are at all times ready to bolt. The machine first appeared on Fort street yesterday morning. It is a single-seated affair and looks more like a "chute-the-chutes" boat than a vehicle. Its steam apparatus is built on the lines of a trip hammer mechanism and makes about as much noise. Up and down the main business street the locomobile moved morning and afternoon and at every revolution of its wheels and cogs and escape of steam horses endeavored to break out of their shafts and run, and on one or two occasions runaways were narrowly averted.

PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

Portuguese May Organize One to Confer With Merchants.
A Portuguese Protective Association, having for its objects the establishment of reciprocal relations with storekeepers and merchants in general, is being talked of. For several months there have been signs of disapproval in the colony as to the non-employment of qualified Portuguese young men as clerks in stores and offices. The Portuguese who are discussing the movement say that they pay out their money to the stores and merchants, and deposit the funds in the various banks, and yet in but few of these places Portuguese clerks are to be found. The movement may practically narrow down to a determination on the part of the Portuguese who participate in the organization, to patronize only places where young men of Portuguese families are numbered amongst the clerical force.

A Cup for Kennedy.

James H. Kennedy, who retired from the management of the Honolulu Iron Works with the close of the last month, after having been in the service of the company for 21 years, was remembered most pleasantly by every one connected with the works on the occasion. At the close of business on his last day he was asked to meet the office force in the office and Mr. Stenicke there, on behalf of his fellows, both in the sales and operating departments, presented him with a loving cup. The cup is a handsome piece of silver, having on one side the monogram of the recipient and on the other the inscription, "From the Office Force" and the date and occasion. Mr. Bush of the sales department then seconded the words of appreciation of their retiring chief. Mr. Kennedy in response spoke feelingly of the ties which years of service had cemented and the difficulty in severing them, commenting upon the loyal and hearty service of his men, and the assistance he had received from each and assuring them of his appreciation of their friendship and sentiments. The officers of the company at the same time tendered to Mr. Kennedy an expression of their hearty appreciation of his long service and accompanied this with a substantial evidence of their feelings.
